

Things To Do

Outlaws, scarecrows and Center City Restaurant Week in this week's 'Things To Do'

By Tonya Pendleton

September 12, 2019

The Politics of Rhetoric

The Print Center

1614 Latimer St.

Friday, Sept. 13 – Saturday, Nov. 16

Free

A new exhibit focuses on the ways we experience bias through language. Artists Keris Salmon, Didier Williams, Sharon Hayes, Sarah McEneaney, Bethany Collins and María Verónica San Martín used various forms of media, including audiotapes, newspapers, plantation records and public and private archives, to show just how much implicit bias is communicated through texts we commonly encounter. The artists present their works in a variety of disciplines, including painting, performance art, video, print and photography.

<https://whyy.org/articles/outlaws-scarecrows-and-center-city-restaurant-week-in-this-weeks-things-to-do/>