

APRIL 03, 2026

Check out these 17 exhibits at Philly museums that honor America's 250th birthday

Institutions across the city are sharing art, artifacts and info on the nation's founding ahead of the celebrations this summer.

BY MICHAELA ALTHOUSE
PhillyVoice Staff

Provided Image/JPG Photography for the Museum of the American Revolution

From now through January, visitors can check out 'The Declaration's Journey' at the Museum of the American Revolution. It's one of many exhibits in Philadelphia this summer honoring the documents 250th anniversary.

Philadelphia cultural centers have a number of upcoming exhibits to celebrate America's 250th birthday, and they cover a wide range of topics — from the postwar economy of the 1700s to the evolution of American art.

Museums are diving deeper into American revolutionary history and its modern impact in preparation for this summer's semiquincentennial celebration to mark the 250th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Here are some of the local institutions who are participating in America's yearlong birthday party.

...

America Today: Voices in Contemporary Print

April 24-July 25 | The Print Center | Free

For three months, the Print Center will display 40 pieces from six print shops across the country. Artists from each shop used the medium to offer their take on cultural democracy and the politics of local communities. The exhibit is a reference to a similar one that occurred in the 1930s.

...

Full article: Check out these 17 exhibits at Philly museums that honor America's 250th birthday